MFEC Mini Grants

Mini grants fund projects which represent a broad range of demographics and reach a variety of areas in Montana. They fund ongoing projects in need of a small boost to meet their funding needs, as well as small-scale pilot projects, for which funding can be hard to secure.

Montana Family, Career and Community Leaders of America - Bozeman
The FCCLA allocated its grant to nine teachers that attended their annual fall Leadership Rally. These teachers received funding to help implement a Financial Fitness project that reached 350 middle and high school students.

MSU Extension - Lewis and Clark County - Helena
This grant funded two projects: Money Habitudes and Solid Finances, with the potential to reach up to 80 low-income residents. Money Habitudes allowed participants to explore their spending habits and move in the direction of improving their financial behaviors. Solid Finances offered “Cool Your Spending: Financial Education Webinar Series” at libraries over the noon hour during the summer.

MSU Extension - Richland County - Sidney
The grant funded a one-day estate planning workshop that helped residents address financial and family issues surrounding estate planning. The workshop reached about 20 Richland County residents.

Montana Youth Homes - Helena
This grant provided basic budgeting skills and other financial life-skills to eight residents of Montana Youth Homes. The training provided practical financial skills the residents can use to help them live independently when they leave the youth home.

Park City School District 5 - Laurel
Park City School offered a Personal Finance Presentation Day for 26 senior class students. The presentation consisted of eight speakers and focused on personal financial topics for students preparing to leave home. One presentation was held in the evening and was open to the public.

National Jump$tart Coalition Launches Program to Increase Financial Education in Schools

The Jump$tart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy (Jump$tart) has set a new goal to increase financial education in our nation’s classrooms 25 percent by the end of 2025. This exciting new initiative dubbed “Project Groundswell” plans to enlist the help of parents, family members, educators, volunteers and Jump$tart’s nationwide network of state affiliates. The focus of Project Groundswell is on getting financial education into more classrooms, regardless of state or local mandates, and at all levels, beginning in elementary school.

Jump$tart has created a virtual toolkit at CheckYourSchool.org for those who want to take part in the effort, including links to research that will help make the case for financial education in schools. Jump$tart’s online clearinghouse will help schools new to financial education find vetted resources from hundreds of providers, as well as the National Standards in K-12 Personal Finance Education and professional development opportunities for classroom teachers.
